Nixon points toward better life in State of the Union address

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, reporting Arab nations would meet soon to discuss the oil embargo, urged nation to "break the mold" of his measures to help cement world peace as the legacy of "my eight years of the presidency."

In his State of the Union address to a Democratic Congress, the President at once catalogued what he proposes for 1974, and boasted of the achievements of his five years in the White House.

And, in a written message, he said he means to make that state the White House eight years ago, obliquely restating his determination to serve out his term.

With that oblique restatement of his intention to serve his full term in the White House, Nixon sent the Democratic Congress a five-word written message charting his legislative agenda.

The catalogue of legislative proposals accompanied his nationally televised State of the Union address from the House chamber of the Capitol.

The written message made only indirect reference to the Watergate scandals that shadow the administration and have produced both demands for his resignation and a House impeachment inquiry.

Nixon spoke of "the intense public focus placed on the campaign abuses of 1972," and said he has created an opportunity for a break through on "the most important issue." He said he would submit a comprehensive set of reform proposals, but did not detail them.

He also disclosed formation of a Cabinet-level panel to help insure the right of privacy in the issue that has raised in Watergate cases.

His message concentrated on set of 10 goals, and first among them he put action to "break the back of the energy crisis" and make the nation self-sufficient in energy.

He declared that "the basic tax budget, should be increased" and said it wouldn't under his $304.4 billion proposed budget—including deficit spending of $9.4 billion.

That budget, he said, would allow for:

"a new system of comprehensive health insurance that would encourage health to build on the private health insurance system to make protection available to millions who cannot currently afford it. "I will maintain the high quality of medical care without requiring higher taxes," Nixon said of his plan.

—What he termed "a crucial breakthrough toward better transportation" by increasing federal aid for metropolitan areas by nearly 50 per cent and giving communities more freedom to balance their transportation needs.

A start on "a broad road toward reform of the tax system," Nixon said, would not submit a new version of his family Assistance Plan but would make a major new effort to develop welfare programs that work. That new system, he said, cannot be "put into operation overnight." But he said an urgent start is needed.

A new Economic Adjustment Program to replace the present Economic Development Administration and regional commissions with red-tape-free aid for regions hit by severe economic problems.

In the only-ranging written message, Nixon made clear he has no intention of resigning. "The chief legacy that I hope to leave from the eight years of my presidency" is a structure of peace that can free transportation from the scourge of war," he said.

"We cannot afford to neglect progress at home while pursuing peace abroad," Nixon said.

"But neither can we afford to neglect peace abroad while pursuing progress at home. "With a stable peace, all is possible; without peace, nothing is possible."

President's letter sparks discussion

The ASBYU Executive Council Wednesday night approved election dates and head counts from a letter published in the Daily Universe by Mark Reynolds and Rick Wilson, ASBYU president and executive vice president.

A Nixon spokesman left open the possibility that the President might answer written questions in the state court

President will refuse to testify

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will refuse to testify personally in the California trial of his former aide, John D. Ehrlichman, despite a court order to the defense, the White House said Wednesday.

A Nixon spokesman left open the possibility that the President might answer written questions in the state court

Earlier Wednesday, Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe criticized the court order as unrealistic "because the President of the United States can't appear in every justice of the peace court all over this country at the whim of that justice of the peace."

Saxbe told reporters he has been asked to help the defense to study to determine whether the subpoena sets a precedent for summoning the President to testify in a broad range of legal proceedings involving the government.

At the request of Ehrlichman's attorney, California Superior Court Judge Gordon Ringer issued an order Tuesday instructing Nixon to appear as a material witness in the trial of Ehrlichman and the other defendants in the White House Plumbers' burglary case.

Reynolds agreed to meet with the ASBYU officers individually today and to attempt to reconcile differences, White said.

Reynolds agreed to meet with the ASBYU officers individually today and to attempt to reconcile differences, White said.

"It was your own little campaign," he said and added that he had undermined the council.

He called for either an apology to the Executive Council or a letter from the president and an open letter from the council on the issue.

"What is the purpose of making this year look bad?"

asked Reid Robison, academics vice president.

"What are your needs aren't being met?"

"Backstabbing is not the intent," replied Reynolds. He said that programs have not been geared to smaller needs of the students specifically.

"Although the attitude is headed in that direction it is not as strong as the attitude towards bigger programs," he said. "The council has done well in the old definition and expectations of putting a program on."

Mark Alexander, social vice president, said the studentbody needs an explanation. "People are asking, 'What is going on the fourth floor?'"

Jon Flton, vice president of the culture said no constructive criticism has been given. "It is impossible to meet all the students' needs," he said. "Reynolds should name some specific needs."

Again Reynolds stressed the point of individual needs. "There are things that could be done in all areas, but we are going to take a broad office and criticize them," he said. "You've got to realize you're being president for more than just your views," said Robison.

A member of the student body who had come with the opinion that the student officers were all wrong said that after hearing the meeting his feelings had changed. He said, "I was told the students were receiving an erroneous impression."

"Maybe what we're saying is 'let's put it to the students,'" said Reynolds.

Waterman said that students would be signing the petition without knowing what they were doing.

Hospital expansion announced

Utah Valley Hospital announced expansion plans on Wednesday.

patient beds, and also a 24-bed coronary and intensive care unit.

Another three-story addition will be used for emergency facilities, medical storage and service areas will be constructed on the east and north sides of the tower.

According to Grant C. Burgon, hospital administrator, one of the main features of the addition will be a modern out-patient center and emergency room. A nine-room surgery unit, X-ray facilities and emergency rooms will be located adjacent to one another on the ground level for optional service and patient care efficiency, Burgon said. This section will be located generally in the three-story section of the addition.

Similar to the "Surgi-Center" concept that is being established in many areas of the United States, will be the out-patient center. It will include 16 "holding beds" to accommodate out-patient surgery.

The hospital's radiology department will be more than almost double, said Burgon.

He said 830 people are now employed by the hospital and expansion will cause an increase of about one-third that number.

Also being expanded will be the parking facilities. The new facilities will be able to accommodate 470 cars.

Official reviews legislator's life

By LANA KIMBALL
University Staff Writer

Being a member of the state legislature, with all its rules, dissenting opinions and lobbyists is far from glamorous.

"What you do is that you have a tendency to glorify. Really, it's hard work and thumbing," said Willard H. Gardner, associate professor of computer science, now serving his first term in the Utah House of Representatives.

Rep. Gardner entered politics at the suggestion of neighbors and now has mixed emotions about his decision. Referring to the Utah House of Representatives, (he) said, "There are 75 individuals involved in the house, the other 75 are involved and yet all have a different viewpoint. Every issue is like that."

Karl N. Snow, Jr., associate professor of political science, agreed politics is not glamorous. Serving his first term in the Utah Senate, Snow entered politics because he became concerned about the system and the people who work in government.

The slowness of legislative action during this budget session has led Sen. Snow to introduce a resolution calling for an annual session. It would also eliminate the 2/3 vote rule which is now necessary in both houses before other non-budgetary items can be discussed. The resolution has been introduced in the Senate and, if it passes the House, the resolution will be presented to Utah voters in the form of a constitutional amendment.

Sen. Snow said that during the budget session there were 20 calendar days, of which about 15 were working days. "That isn't time to do many things."

Other members of the legislature, according to Snow, Gardner, and Dr. Bryce B. Orton, acting dean of the college of business, include the Land Use Planning bill, the proposed purchase of the Desert Land & Livestock Co., education and find an acceptable Utah abortion bill. The previous abortion bill was declared unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Gardner is particularly concerned with the increasing cost of education in Utah. "We have to make a basic decision whether to continue taxpayer support of education," he said, adding that the percentage of total income used for educational purposes has been constantly increasing during the last five years.

Public apathy concerned all three legislators. Speaking of students, Gardner said, "I think they care. The problem is that students don't know how to be effective. I don't fault them for that." He added that student and lobbyist ideas is a major problem hindering each group's effectiveness.

Dr. Orton, acting dean of the Provo City School Board and now serving as a state representative, said, "I think that students are like most of the rest of the population—they never take an interest." He said students are less idealistic today than a few years ago and now the movement is towards reality among youths.

He added, "I think if we're going to preserve freedom, we're going to have to take an interest and become involved in what takes place."

Shoplifters use many techniques

The customer is young. Her coat is heavy, elegant pretty and polite. She has a small shopping basket in her right hand, a sweater on her left, a handbag on her shoulder, and looks at several accessories, but ultimately she decides against buying any of the items.

When she leaves the store 45 minutes later, she takes with her over $65 in concealed pockets, have been right inside the coat—perfect for neatly swiping gloves, shirts, even tennis rackets and frying pans.

Her purpose is of good quality and she could have had a variety of items. A strong handle allows it to rest securely on her arm, and also greatly lessens the distance she has to walk.

Shoplifters utilize varying methods

The biggest group of offenders in the Provo area are teenage girls, but shoplifters encompass virtually every age and economic bracket. Well dressed matrons, businessmen and college students regularly appear in court on charges of petty larceny. Juvenile offenders and senior citizens are also among the repeat offenders.

The manager of a large Provo food market told of an especially dressed older man who was stopped by a clerk for hiding a package ofologna in his overcoat pocket. When the police examined his belongings they discovered $7,000 in his wallet.

Later,

"Many of the offenders we interview do not steal because they lack money to purchase necessary items," Gladie M. Terry, a Provo Police Detective said. "There are a variety of motives associated with shoplifting."

A BYU student who claims to have once been quite adept at shoplifting, was asked about why people shoplift.

"It's a real challenge," he said. "I like to be proud of myself when I successfully raided a store."

Peer admiration, impulse and habit were also cited by the student as possible motives. "Sometimes I'd enter a store without conscious intent to steal anything, but if I happened to see someone I liked that looked pretty available, I'd usually rip it off," he said.

Most merchants interviewed admitted that despite their precautions, shoplifters are still swiping a substantial quantity of goods, with better trained personnel and shoplifting devices being used in this area. Although many stores prominently display signs that announce they are protected from shoplifting, others say they do not wish to publicize their devices because it antagonizes the customer or makes them nervous and uncomfortable.

Fund drive nears goal for county

The United Way of Utah County has raised $272,000 since the start of its campaign last September.

This figure represents 94 percent of the total goal of $290,000, according to Jack Holmes, executive director of United Way for Utah County. The money is being used to fund 17 different agencies operating in Utah County, such as Heart Association, Red Cross, Mental Health Association and Boy Scouts of America.

The money collected by the United Way represents 100 percent of the operating budget for the 17 agencies. This enables the various agencies to do their respective jobs and not worry about raising money, according to Holmes. "90 percent of the money we raise stays in Utah County," said Holmes. The other 10 percent goes outside the county, because of the national affiliation of many of the agencies, explained Holmes.

According to Holmes, the allocation of the money to various agencies is handled very carefully. The budget and admissions committee meet with each of the agencies to determine their program and how the money will be spent. This information also allows the committee to determine how much money the will need to raise in order to meet the demands of the agencies.

"This is one of our biggest sell points," said Holmes. "The public knows exactly where their money is going. The main method of gathering contributions is done through payroll deduction. According to this plan, employees in companies in Utah County agree to give a certain amount of their paycheck each month to the United Way. This amount is then deducted from their check according to Holmes. $200,000 of this year's total is from payroll deduction with approximately 13,000 workers participating.

Church stresses mother relations

By NORMA NEILSON
University Staff Writer

Mother-daughter relationships are weakening across the country, but not, says BYU women among LDS church members.

Bert Cundick, professor of psychology, said one reason for the national generation gap is that church members, mainly the more middle-aged, pull daughters away from their mothers at an earlier age than in the past.

"You have been influenced by a culture outside your home to a greater degree than your mother was," Cundick said.

But most BYU women feel their mothers are still a force in their lives.

A junior from Overton, Nev., Paula Andelin, said, "I don't feel there is a gap between parents and children."

Another girl noted, "I have no problem talking to my mother; she likes us a lot and relates to us."

An article printed in the Chicago Tribune said the trend toward separation between mothers and daughters is now expressed openly and that the mother's authority over her adult daughter is gone.

A senior who had spent a semester abroad, Catherine Ford, said the separation between mothers and daughters had improved their relationship considerably. "It makes you count your blessings when someone isn't with you," she said.

"I think most girls would have better relationships with their mothers than the next group," said Jensen, associate professor of psychology.

Reasons for tensions and bad feelings between mother and daughter may stem from lack of affection and a show of appreciation in the home.

"I think there's ample evidence to show that all three things need attention, physical affection, and young girls will seek physical affection outside the home if it's not provided inside the home," Jensen said.

Women tend to raise their children the way they were raised themselves. According to Cundick, what we learn at home is what we teach our children. Women tend to imitate their mothers, and as you were raised so will you raise your children. Because of the importance placed upon the role of the mother in the church, women tend to reflect their mothers more, he said.

Church emphasis is on the family and provides materials and instruction on how to achieve the goal of family life, Larry Jensen said. "Amen groups, such as primary and MIA, assist the daughter in doing her part," he said.

Of refrigeration is ignored, Dr. Hofheins explained. The "task" of medically proving that an illness was the result of food poisoning the doctor noted several real difficulties.

Often the stricken person has eaten "all" of the food which might have caused the illness, he said. Or maybe the number of people who suspected food had been thrown in the trash and is unsuitable for lab testing.

The Doctor said that the Health Center does see a large number of students with stomach illnesses which are mostly caused by "viral infections."

He cautioned that the contents of bottles or cans that had bulging tops should be discarded without passing a taste test. A simple taste test could be fatal, he said.

Fulfillment to be focus of address

Marion D. Hanks, assistant to the Quorum of the Twelve, will speak on "How to Fulfill Yourself as a Member of the Church at BYU" today at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall.

Elder Hanks, president of Delta Phi Kappa National Fraternity, originally from Salt Lake City, has been prominent in civic affairs, particularly in the field of youth development.

In 1967 he was appointed a member of the United States President's Citizens Advisory Committee on Youth Fitness, on which he served for several years. This year he has spoken at youth conferences throughout the United States and in foreign countries and was a featured speaker at the White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Elder Hanks has served a two-year mission for the Church in the northern United States.

Delta Phi Kappa, in cooperation with the Organizations Office, will be sponsoring the program.

Scholar to talk about ecology

Landscape ecology and how it relates to natural resources will be the topic of discussion by a Guatemalan geographer, Luis Ferrate, Thursday and Friday.

Ferrate is head of the Department of Environmental Studies in the Center for Technical Evaluation of Forest Resources in Guatemala.

He will be speaking Thursday at 10 a.m. in 170 HGB conference room. A special photographic in tropical areas.

At noon Thursday he will give a seminar on pollution in the Martin Building.

A question and answer period will be offered Friday at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. in 166 HGB.

According to Robert Layton, professor of geography, "Ferrate is engaged in the study and evaluation of land use and evaluation of resources." He is also making a series of maps of land use in the highlands of Guatemala and taking inventory of the resources of the area, Layton said.

All students interested in the lectures and seminars presented by Ferrate are invited to attend.

Democrats may settle out of court

WASHINGTON (AP) — A democratic party source says Democrats are willing to accept an out-of-court settlement of their $6.4 million lawsuit against President Nixon's re-election committee if the price is right.

But the source said a Republican offer of $600,000 to settle the suit has been rejected.

Democrats are seeking to recover damages resulting from the June 1972 break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington, the so-called Watergate break-in.

The source said the Republicans made their offer for the re-election committee and the President's re-election finance committee in late April. The Democratic National Committee wants $1.25 million to settle its part of the litigation. The source said he did not know how much other Democratic plaintiffs wanted to settle.

The source said the Republicans made their offer earlier this month but have not made another offer since. It was rejected in late April.

Watergate costs were $75,000 more than the Republicans offered last April.

Marion W. Parkinson, lawyer for the Nixon re-election committee, declined to confirm the report.

In Bryant Pond, Maine, the 350 telephone subscribers hold on to hand-knitted clothes, fighting all the way to the Maine Public Utilities Commission.

Bookstore can't drop prices without losses, says director

Textbook prices cannot be lowered, according to BYU Books without causing the publisher to lose money, said Glen Coats, director of the Bookstore's book division.

Coats said the books are sold to students for the price set by the publisher, and the bookstore buys them from the publisher for 80 per cent of that price. This leaves a 20 per cent margin with which to operate the business.

"That margin they give us," Coats said, "doesn't quite meet expenses." He said it takes 20 per cent margin to operate a retail bookstore. That difference is made up by the supplies sold on the first floor.

Nixon appoints media director

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has decided to promote Kenneth W. Clawson to director of communications for his administration, it was reported Thursday.

Clawson, a former Washington Post reporter, has been deputy director of communications for the last two years. He succeeds Herb Klein in the top job. Klein resigned last year to return to private business.

The sources who disclosed the President's intention to the announcement did not come this week, possibly Wednesday.

Food poisoning cases 'very rare,' officials say

By GARY McDOWELL
University Staff Writer

Food poisoning cases of BYU students are very rare, according to Dr. Cloyd Hofheins, director of the Health Center.

However, he explained that anyone who fails to take certain basic precautions like making sure all food is properly refrigerated stand a chance of becoming "deadly."

"Any suspicious cases" of food poisoning which show up at the Health Center "are thoroughly tested," he said.

He also explained that BYU Food Service sends samples to the Center whenever the quality of a certain food is in question.

Verel Ashby, director of the Medical Center Cafeteria, said he had "sent samples out before" for testing but had "never had a negative response."

Ron Schouten, director of the Central Cafeteria, said that he had "heard a lot about" food poisoning at BYU "for several years."

Dr. Hofheins commented that BYU Food Services "takes stringent pains" to insure the quality of food they serve.

The Doctor pinpointed pastries with cream in them and meats as two types of food which most commonly cause food poisoning when not handled properly.

"Organisms can grow rapidly in non-refrigerated cream pie and pies causing the common food-borne food poisoning," he said.

Care should be taken to refrigerate meats both before and after cooking, he added. Also, they should be thoroughly cooked.

"Butchers don't work under operating room conditions," so most meats have a high bacteria content which can mean problems when the rule

Seats guaranteed

There will be no more of the traditional waiting in two different lines for three hours to see a two hour show at the Wilkinson Center theater, only to be disappointed by not getting a seat.

According to Bob Moss, business manager for the Wilkinson Center, the policy for ticket distribution has been changed. Now every ticket holder will be guaranteed a seat. The theater will only sell tickets for the number of seats they have.

College

Junior

The College Junior Program is an action-packed course, open only to young women who have completed their junior year of college. It's timed and planned to give you an insight into the opportunities offered to college graduates as officers in the Women's Army Corps.

As a cadet corporal in the Women's Army Corps Enlisted Reserve, you spend four summer weeks at Fort McClellan, Alabama, with other students from all over the nation. They're busy weeks of training, and learning, and fun, shared with new friends. Towards the end of this time, you'll spend several days at Fort Benning, Georgia, where you'll see and meet your male Army counterparts. You'll watch them demonstrate military tactics, and join them in social activities.

Please send me information on the College Junior Program.

Umberto D'

Italian film will air

"Umberto D" will air on KBYU Channel 11 Thursday at 9 p.m. as part of the Humanities Film Forum.

Produced by Vittorio De Sica in 1952, it is considered the last great film of the post-war film renaissance in Italy. The story of old man D'Amato's struggle to stay in a society that has cast him aside.

The role of Umberto, an old pensioner who lives alone with his dog in desperate poverty, is played by a non-professional. The film is the first Italian neo-realistic film-makers shunned traditional tradition and strove to recreate the world around them. The recent release of their film, and of Umberto D, in particular, was to show what is happening in the lives of the people easily ignored.

De Sica dedicated this film to his mother, Umberto. It is not only a study of the lonely struggles of old age, but also a specific study of Italian society at the time the film was made.

The script for "Umberto D" was written by Cesare Zavattini, who also collaborated with de Sica on "Shoesheen" and "The Bicycle Thief."

Following the film, a panel of three guest experts will discuss the movie in its historical context with host Dr. James H. Billington, professor of history at Princeton University.

The film was described by Newsweek as "a cry of pain and despair at theกรรม and cruelty of modern life." A Time magazine critic stated that "Umberto D" may well be the "last fierce rose of that creative summer in which the Italian cinema came to full bloom."

Harold Lloyd estate grandest relic of all

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — As of May 25, the public will be able to see a $2 million relic of the elegant era when movie stars lived like movie stars.

The grandest of all, the Hollywood mansions — Harold Lloyd's — is now open to the general public via group visits by bus.

The visitors see luxury that none of today's film personalities can afford. For instance:

A Versailles-like formal garden with doll houses that are completely livable.

A huge living room with built-in pipe organ.

Two 1924 Rolls-Royces and a 1930 Packard.

A hanging staircase of oak, reportedly the only one in Southern California.

Centuries-old rugs and tapestries, including a Persian which is said to be the gift of Mary Pickford — "because I can't stand that bare wall."

The most popular attraction is the Lloyd Christmas tree. The tree is a spindly one hanging the huge indoor tree with hundreds of handcrafted ornaments gathered from around the world.

BYU phone fraud down

People who use code words to send friends and family a message without paying for a long-distance call are guilty of telephone fraud, according to Kenneth O. Hill, Utah Public Relations manager for Mountain Bell telephone.

"Many people apparently think there is nothing wrong with code calling, but it is a serious offense," Hill said. He pointed out that code calling comprises a large portion of telephone fraud and costs telephone companies and phone customers millions of dollars each year.

Billing calls to unauthorized third parties, using a phony telephone credit card, and the use of electronic devices to avoid payment for toll calls are other methods of telephone fraud, he said.

In 1971, A.T. & T. lost millions of dollars from telephone fraud, according to company to launch an intensive campaign aimed at reducing fraud calls. The effort has proved very successful, and by the end of 1972, telephone fraud had decreased 60 percent.

Incidents of telephone fraud have decreased significantly this year at colleges and universities, according to Max Haney, Mountain Bell Security Investigator.

There have been no reported incidents of telephone fraud at BYU this year, however. Haney said. Two years ago, 28 BYU students were identified and confronted by Mountain Bell Security and BYU officials in making a significant decrease from the previous year.

Haney said he feels a possible reason for the decrease in telephone fraud at BYU is the result of a speech delivered by Pres. Oaks to the student body last February. Oaks challenged students to be honest in all their dealings, and referred to code calling as a dishonest practice.

In 1972, a private survey was conducted by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to determine whether college students understood that misuse of long-distance service is a crime. The survey was conducted on four college campuses in Washington, D.C., and involved 300 students.

The results showed that 43 percent of the students had telephone fraud seriously, and 58 percent said they felt they would never get caught. Forty percent said they knew somebody who had been caught.

When asked how telephone fraud compared with other crimes, students said they thought it was more serious than the possession of marijuana but less serious than theft.

"Our goal is to let students know the seriousness of telephone fraud and to encourage them not to get involved," Hill explained.

He pointed out that a conviction for telephone fraud could haunt a person for the rest of his life.

High school honors students get sneak preview of college

Top high school students from Utah and surrounding states are getting a sneak preview of college life - BYU style - Saturday.

More than 1,400 talented youths will be invited to BYU's School of Conference, beginning 1 p.m. in the Wilkinson Center, said Lee Gibbons, director of High School Relations.

Students are invited on the bases of GPA and scores on the ACT or the National Merit

Concert to offer theatrical music

Clayne W. Robison, director of music drama, will present a concert of theatrical music, beginning today at 10 a.m. in the ELWC's auditorium lounge according to the ASBYU Culture Office.

The concert is presented partly in commemoration of the birthday of W.A. Mozart, whose music for theater will be presented.

Mozart was born 217 years ago this week.

Clayne W. Robison has become a favorite instructor for this high level of creative artistry and performing talent and his ability to work with students, said James Earl Salter, spokesman for the Culture Office.

Dr. Robison received his doctorate in Music Theater Production from the University of Washington and joined the BYU faculty last Fall.

Scholarship Test. All have indicated interest in attending BYU.

The young scholars will participate in classes and may interview for scholarships, Gibbons said. An information fair will provide answers on all phases of college life, he added.

The keynote speaker for the one-day conference is Dr. Truman G. Madson, BYU professor of philosophy.

Cougars get set to fight Rams

Game to be tonight against Colorado

By RON RAFN

Asst. Universe Sports Editor

Following a relatively easy home stand against Arizona State and Arizona last weekend, the youthful BYU basketball team travels to Fort Collins, Colo. tonight to battle WAC title contender Colorado State.

The Rams have been particularly tough at home this year and have knocked off both Arizona and ASU by considerable margins. CSU comes off a rather frustrating road trip last week as it barely bowed to UTEP 53-52 and again was nosed out by New Mexico 54-49.

The loss to the Lobos was especially disappointing as the Rams couldn't manage a win despite the fact that three Lobo players, including standout guard Hardin, were suspended by Coach Norm Eller.

Coach Glenn Potter said he was pleased with BYU's performances against the two Arizona schools last weekend.

"Even though we split against the Arizona schools, I thought we played some of our best ball of the season," he said.

Some encouragement can be drawn from the fact BYU has managed to win occasionally at Fort Collins. Last year, after losing to the Rams 70-67 in Provo, the Cougars bounced back to defeat CSU 78-74 in Fort Collins. The Cats also won games there in 1971 and 1972.

BYU will try and improve on its current 4-8 road record, but indications show that the Cats will have their hands full trying to improve that road record against the Rams tonight. BYU goes into the game with a 10-10 record, including a 5-3 record in the WAC record, good for seventh place in the conference standings.

Coach Jim Williams' Rams team comes into the contest with a 9-7 overall record and WAC mark of 3-2, third in the standings.

Coach Potter noted that there may be a change in the starting lineup in the weekend's game, with CSU and Wyoming's Troy Jones, 6-9 sophomore forward, who played so well in the series with the Arizona schools, could get the starting nod over freshman Jay Cheesman also 6-9.

Coming off the bench as a reserve, Jones played well in both games. In the combined games he played 10 minutes, scored 18 points, hauled down 16 rebounds and had 11 assists. In addition, he blocked several opponents shots at the basket. From the field he 12 of 16 shots, a sizzling 75 percent from the floor.

Other probable starters include forward Chris Williams, center Mike Handy and senior guards Belmont Anderson and Doug Richards. Anderson and Richards performed well last week as Anderson scored 24 points in a losing effort to Arizona and Richards hit for 24 and 20 points against ASU and Arizona. Handy played superbly against the Sun Devils, he scored a career high 20 points and had 12 rebounds.

In addition, Williams had a good game against ASU as he scored a career high of 14 points, collected six rebounds and looked particularly tough on defense.

CSU's top fielder is Tim Hall, he is averaging 14.8 points a game and 10.6 rebounds per contest. Hall played a key instrumental role in CSU's two upsets over Arizona and ASU a few weeks back.

The Rams speed and quickness is embodied in the persons of senior guards Rudy Carey and Danny Phillips. The two other starters for CSU include center Como Pontiana and forward Terry Larrew, who will pose some problems for the Cougars.

Coach assistants named

Don McCaulley, defensive coordinator for Chico State, and Evert Jones, a high school coach in California for nine years, have been named to assist new University of Utah football coach Tom McCall.

McCall will take over a similar post with Utah, head coach at Cabrillo High School, will be the line backer and defensive back for Buena Vista College in Iowa.

Chico State won three division championships in the six seasons and has appeared in the Division II Camelia Bowl. McCaulley played for Buena Vista College in Iowa.

Jones was a graduate freshman assistant under Ray Nagel at Utah in 1958.

gymnasts meet Southern Illinois and Colorado State in a meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Fieldhouse.

he coach feels his team members up to the stiff challenge.

Steve Monroe

"They've been looking good these past two weeks. It's been a good year pushing themselves a lot harder than we ever could have pushed them. They're up for the meet and have made the necessary preparations."

The two top All-Around men, Glen Talwell and Jon Hallberg, have been averaging 51 points per meet; BYU's Wener Hoeger compares favorably with the 51.90 points he gained two weeks ago against Colorado University.

Wener, your top Cougar all-around competitor, sat out of two events against CU with an ankle sprain which had him on crutches for three days. According to Coach Morgenegg, the ankle is improving daily and Young is expected to participate in the meet.

Though the coach feels that the three squads are "quite evenly matched," he anticipates the side horse to be the Cougars' weakest area. He maintains, "If we can have a decent performance on the side horse, we can hold our own and can hold our own in the other four events."

"CSU suffered a major setback three weeks ago when they lost Rick Garcia, team leader in floor exercise and a senior standout, who is out with a chipped bone in his wrist and his condition is still dubious."

The Cougars have been acutely aware of the intense competition to be encountered in tonight's meet and their workouts have reflected a serious attitude.

Cats make honor squad

Steve Stratton

Matching good grades with good gridiron performances, two seniors at BYU have been named to the 1973 Academic All-America team.

Steve Stratton, a three-year letterman at fullback, was named to the first-team offensive unit, and Cougar running back Dan Taylor was selected on the second team for the second year in a row.

Two other players from the Western Athletic Conference also made the honor team. Utah's Steve Odom was listed as a running back on the first team, and Wyoming's Mike Lopiccolo was first unit tackle.

Stratton had the highest grade point average of any player on the first unit, a 3.91 in physical therapy. Steve, who averaged 5.5 yards per game, also made the WAC academic squad as a junior and senior.

Taylor, one of the top five runners on the All-American team, had a 3.89 (4.0 is perfect) grade point average in pre-dentistry.

Stratton, who is from Auburn, Calif., indicated he will continue graduate work in the physical therapy. Taylor, a senior from Antioch, Calif., is awaiting acceptance to dental school.

This year's team was selected from among the finest scholar-athletes in the country. And the team was drawn from nine major conferences, plus many independents.

WAC top players must choose NFL, World Football League

Two of the Western Athletic Conference's top football players are some seniors thinking to do after the opening rounds of the National Football League draft.

Arizona State's quarterback Danny White and Oregon's Bert Manning each have offers from the NFL and the fledgling World Football League to consider. In addition, White has also been tagged by the Houston Astro's minor team of the National League.

The ASU and OSU outstanding tailback, Woody Green, the only WAC player to be chosen in the first round of the NFL draft, were among the prospects drafted in the first five rounds.

In addition, Monroe Eley, former of ASU, and Steve Odom of Oregon, also chose the NFL.

"Football still is very much in the picture," said White of his three offers. "The Houston people told me I probably would start out at the door level and have a good chance to be in the big leagues within two years."

In the football drafts, White was named in the second round by Chicago of the WFL and in the third by Dallas of the NFL.

"There's a lot to think about," he said. "Chicago might afford a more immediate chance to play, but Dallas is an established organization with a good reputation."

White Morton has asked to be traded, and if that happens, it could open up some doors. I have a lot of people to talk to and a lot of thinking to do."
